

Ben & Jerry's Scoops Serve Injured Troops

Hope For The Warriors™ benefits from Free Cone Day

CAMP LEJEUNE, NORTH CAROLINA , April 28th, 2009 - Ben and Jerry's Ice Cream Shop aboard Camp Lejeune, NC, held their Annual Free Cone Day on Tuesday, April 21st, with the day's tips benefitting Hope For The Warriors™.

Staff from the local NC office of Hope For The Warriors™ dished out 1,934 scoops of the yummy concoction bringing in $902.75 that will assist the national non-profit organization in their mission to support wounded service members and their families.

"We believe that Ben & Jerry's has a responsibility to give back to the community," states Ed Barber, owner of the Camp Lejeune Ben & Jerry's. " Hope For The Warriors™ was selected this year because they are a wonderful local organization that does so much for the service members. We're looking forward to celebrating again next year with them," Barber stated.

The annual free cone day, started back in 1979 marking Ben & Jerry's first anniversary. Now it's an annual nationwide celebration.
